

All About Carbon Dioxide

16th March 2009

The Letters Editor,

Canberra has developed into nonsense factory. There is nothing more ridiculous than carbon dioxide being declared a danger to civilization.

Present levels of carbon dioxide are a mere 385 parts per million. However, levels of carbon dioxide are quite safe at 5,000 parts per million. Reliable sources claim we can tolerate up to 15,000 parts per million. That's about 3,900 times as much as we now have. The plants and trees love it.

For all practical purposes, carbon dioxide has no effect whatsoever on the temperature of the planet. That is governed by the activities of the sun.

In spite of all of the evidence available, our politicians seem incapable of absorbing it. They are determined to tax the population in order to lower the temperature of the planet. An obvious nonsense. It does indeed seem as though power stupefies.

What the fuss and bother is really about is power and control.

Ronald Kitching

P.O. Box 9809

Frenchville QLD 4701

Australia

Phone 61 - 7 - 4926 4681

Fax 61 - 7 - 4926 4681

E-mail <ron.kitching@rahco.org>

RAHCO Web Site <www.rahco.com>