

Letter to the Editor

The Letters Editor,

Holidays in Gallifrey.

Reflecting on the whim of Climate Change Czar Garnaut's pronouncement that Australian's must give up eating cattle and lambs, and instead eat kangaroos.

It's a great idea, as we already have great mobs of kangaroos since squatters cleared land, planted grass and legumes, drilled holes for water and built dams for water conservation.

In order to maintain export income, I wonder if Europeans, Indians, Japanese and Chinese will develop a taste for these animals which have reached pest proportions. A reduction in numbers will certainly be welcomed by most farmers.

It has occurred to me that a genius like Garnaut could not possibly come from planet earth, but like his colleagues that support his arguments must come from another planet.

Maybe, like Dr. Who, perhaps he comes from Gallifrey.....

It may be an interesting competition for the government to start a competition among voters to guess from which planet, in which galaxy, these people have migrated.

First prize will be a ride in a time travel machine. Winners could leave this planet until the credit crisis disappeared. There would be lots of starters.

Ronald Kitching
QLD, Australia.

7 October 2008