

Mass Hysteria and Climate Change

The villain of alleged “frightening” climate change is carbon dioxide and is vilified exclusively by the political left wing of all nations.

This socialist driven hysteria will have similar results as did the mass hysteria to embrace the Marxist/Lenin revolution which devastated Russia, Italy, Germany, Cambodia, China, Cuba, Vietnam and almost every Central and Southern American nation there is.

The net result was that well over one hundred million people were put to death, or starved to death by their own leaders, plus extreme poverty and degradation for the survivors.

The leaders lived in luxury but in absolute terror of one another. In her book “Letters to A Friend,” it is reported by Stalin’s daughter, Svetlana Alliluyeva, that Stalin lived in terror of his own shadow.

If we are being observed by a superior civilisation, they will be amazed that the apparently most intelligent of the great apes that dominate the planet, develop a peculiarly curious psychosis which periodically induces them to lemming like suicidal behaviour.

Readers may be interested that the particular crowd behaviour referred to above is explained by psychologist Gustave Le Bon in his book titled “The Crowd”. The book was first published in 1895 and has never ever been out of print.

In the final chapter of the book, on page 211, Le Bon points out the dangers of a parliamentary system in all countries. Adapted to modern needs it involves financial waste and the progressive containment of all liberty.
