

Public Lunch with ... Johan Norberg

We all work for the government now!

Johan Norberg is a freelance free-marketeer and the author of several books, including the award-winning 'In Defence of Global Capitalism', now translated into the world's major languages and published in 22 different countries. His articles have been published internationally and he has appeared on BBC Radio and other international radio and television networks discussing globalisation and free trade. Norberg, one of the world's most brilliant young scholars, in Perth for the first time, will talk at this event on the topic "We all work for the government now: Is there any alternative model for our future?"
